Our Thoughts:

A striking trend of high mobility is evident as a significant number of individuals actively explore new opportunities. However, this surge in job-seeking behaviour may be intricately linked to the prevalent wave of redundancies.

Regrettably, the Product sector emerges as a market facing substantial challenges over the past 12 months. Businesses within this domain appear to be strategically realigning their goals, emphasising swift adaptations and quicker victories to compensate for a decline in profits. This nuanced shift underscores the industry's responsiveness to economic shifts and highlights the agility demanded in the pursuit of sustained success.
